Editor Courses

Editors are in a unique position to shape what gets published, which voices are amplified, and what norms are reinforced. This course explores the sources of bias in editorial processes and provides tools and policies editors can adopt to ensure more inclusive peer review, diverse authorship, and fair assessment of research from underrepresented populations or perspectives.

Practical Recommendations for Editors to Promote Representative Developmental Science

The Editor Course offers practical recommendations for journal editors on how to promote equity, inclusion, and representation within developmental science through editorial decision-making. Editors are in a unique position to shape what gets published, which voices are amplified, and what norms are reinforced. This course explores the sources of bias in editorial processes and provides tools and policies editors can adopt to ensure more inclusive peer review, diverse authorship, and fair assessment of research from underrepresented populations or perspectives.

Click Here

This course was created by a working group of the SRCD, led by

Melissa Lutchkus, Senior Publications Manager

Funding

This course was supported by a grant from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation.

Reviewer Zero is supported by the National Science Foundation (NSF) Division of Graduate Education award numbers 2224777, 2224779, and 2436430.

Contributors

Mariam Aly, Ph.D.
Department of Psychology
University of California, Berkeley
Reviewer Zero Organizing Committee

Shahana Ansari, Ph.D.
Department of Psychological and Brain Sciences
Indiana University
Reviewer Zero Organizing Committee

Eliana Colunga, Ph.D.
Department of Psychology and Neuroscience
University of Colorado, Boulder
Reviewer Zero Organizing Committee

Amanda Diekman, Ph.D.
Department of Psychological and Brain Sciences
Indiana University
Reviewer Zero Organizing Committee

Matthew Goldrick, Ph.D.
Department of Linguistics
Cognitive Science Program
Northwestern University

Reviewer Zero Organizing Committee

Click Here