Grants for Candidate Engagement Initiatives for Midterm Elections

Research!America, a non-profit advocacy alliance, in partnership with the National Science Policy Network, has announced a request for proposals from graduate student-and postdoc-led science policy groups for the alliance's bipartisan candidate engagement initiative for the 2018 midterm elections. This exciting initiative will support student science policy groups interested in increasing their level of civic engagement and outreach to candidates running for national office to elevate the importance of scientific research during the midterm elections. Applicants can apply for $1,000 to $3,000 in grants with the potential for up to $5,000 for high-impact proposals.

Deadline: Friday, August 10th (extended from July 13th).
