NEWS | POSTED OCTOBER 24, 2019

Call for Applications: 2020 Teaching Mentorship Program [DEADLINE EXTENDED]

Now accepting mentor and scholar applications through December 13, 2019

MATERIALS

Due

Friday, December 13, 2019 11:59pm

Teaching Mentorship Program Guidelines

LEARN MORE

Scholar Application Site

APPLY NOW

Mentor Application Site

APPLY NOW

Application Deadline Extended:
December 13, 2019, 11:59pm ET

The SRCD Teaching Committee is excited to announce that the application sites for the Teaching Mentorship Program are now open!

SRCD is currently accepting mentor and scholar applications for the Teaching Mentorship Program. The purpose of the program is to assist graduate students or early-career teachers in navigating faculty life through developing a relationship with a more experienced faculty member, or mentor, from another institution. The mentor will serve as a resource for teaching ideas and feedback and a guide for managing interactions with students, other faculty, and administrators. The scholar will bring his or her fresh energy and ideas to the relationship as well, allowing reciprocal benefit for both mentor and scholar. Visit the Teaching Mentorship Program webpage for program guidelines.

Start a Scholar Application Start a Mentor Application

Mentor-scholar matching will be completed in December 2019 and the program will start in January 2020.

Questions? Contact scholar@srcd.org.